LEGAL TEACHING, WRITING, AND RESEARCH EXPERIENCE

LECTURER, YALE UNIVERSITY, New Haven, CT, USA 2017-2020

Teaching a 13-week undergraduate seminar titled: “Tinker, Tailor, Lawyer, Spy: Espionage and International Law”. The seminar was selected through the Yale Residential College Seminar Program, which is devoted to the development of innovative courses that fall outside departmental structures. Courses arise through initial interviews and evaluations by student committees followed by three levels of faculty review, in line with the normal channels of approval for all Yale College courses. Espionage and International Law examines through case studies and in-class discussions the role that international law plays in the regulation of interstate peacetime espionage operations. The class covers such topics as: mass surveillance and the right to privacy in cyberspace, “going dark” and the crypto-wars, torture and other cruel or degrading treatment as a form of human intelligence gathering, the territoriality of data in an age of cloud computing, reconnaissance missions from the oceans and outer-space, the centrality of tech corporations as “surveillance intermediaries”, and hacking techniques in the prevention of transboundary crimes and the fight against terrorism.

AFFILIATE, BERKMAN KLEIN CENTER FOR INTERNET AND SOCIETY, HARVARD UNIVERSITY, Cambridge, USA 2019-2020

As an affiliate position I conduct research on the regulation of the cyber insurance market, in particular the fast expanding role that private insurers play in developing and enforcing data protection and cybersecurity standards. The research attempts to examine existing torts and insurance doctrines application in the cyber liability context. The work further benefits from primary sources including in-depth study of insurance policies, interviews with insurance industry representatives, municipal and state attorneys, and consultancy and compliance firms. The research thus offers a review of the insurability of various forms of cyber risk and the growing impact that insurers have had on the evolution of public cyber policies.

POSTDOCTORAL CYBERSECURITY RESEARCH FELLOW, FLETCHER SCHOOL OF LAW AND DIPLOMACY, TUFTS UNIVERSITY, Cambridge, USA 2018-2020

The postdoctoral position is jointly funded by Google and the Hewlett Foundation and is housed at the Center for Cybersecurity Law and Policy at the Fletcher School of Law and Diplomacy at Tufts University. The research, supervised by Professor of computer science and international relations, Susan Landau, examines the scope and effectiveness of existing surveillance regulation and policies, as they are implemented by the U.S. intelligence community, with a particular focus on communications metadata collection in the fight against international terrorism.

EXPERT, UNITED NATIONS OFFICE ON DRUGS AND CRIME, Vienna, Austria 2018-2019

Member of the United Nations Office on Drugs and Crime (UNODC) Expert Group to peer-review the Education for Justice (E4J) Module Series on Cybercrime. The initiative, part of the Programme for the Implementation of the Doha Declaration, relies on thirty cybersecurity experts from around the world to develop a publicly accessible, multilingual and multidisciplinary syllabus, lesson plans and exercises for the teaching of the topic of cybercrime. Modules include inter alia such topics as: digital forensics in cybercrime investigations, cyber-enabled intellectual property theft, privacy and data protection regulation, cybersecurity and risk prevention, cyber organized crime, and political cybercrime.

HUMAN RIGHTS FELLOW, PRIVACY INTERNATIONAL, London, United Kingdom 2016-2017

Privacy International (PI) is a London-based charity committed to investigating the secret world of government surveillance and exposing the companies enabling it. My work with PI helps advance domestic and international policies aimed at strengthening effective privacy protections and data regulations while curtailing illegal surveillance. During my fellowship year I am involved in targeted research and trial assistance for ongoing cases and interventions before the European Court of Human Rights, the Inter-American Commission of Human Rights, the European Court of Justice, and the U.K. Investigatory Powers Tribunal. I also assist in drafting reports and submissions before international organizations while engaging governments, parliaments, and companies on an array of privacy issues stemming inter alia from governmental hacking, data exploitation, algorithmic snooping, and intelligence sharing. In this regard, I am particularly involved in drafting PI's reports for the U.N. Human Rights Committee; developing and presenting thematic papers to U.N. Special Rapporteurs; and coordinating efforts with privacy experts and digital rights NGOs across Europe and in the global south.

AUTHOR OF THE 2016 JESSUP COMPROMIS, 57TH PHILLIP C. JESSUP INTERNATIONAL LAW MOOT COURT COMPETITION, Washington D.C., USA 2015-2016

132 teams from 86 countries have competed in the White & Case International Rounds of the 57th Philip C. Jessup International Law Moot Court Competition. The problem, which I authored, is titled "The Case Concerning the Frost Files", and it involves complex legal issues concerning the admissibility of illicitly-obtained evidence before the ICJ, the legality of espionage and mass electronic surveillance under international law, the right to privacy and the extraterritoriality of the ICCPR, diplomatic immunities and privileges under both treaty and customary law, state jurisdictional immunity and the legality of seizure, forfeiture, and expropriation, pre-trial and preventative detention of prospected terrorists, and the attribution and legality of low level cyber attacks. The final round was presided by Judges Hisashi Owada, Christopher Greenwood, and Bruno Simma of the International Court of Justice.

RESEARCH ASSISTANT, NYU CENTER ON LAW AND SECURITY, New York City, New York, USA 2015

The Center on Law and Security at NYU School of Law is a non-partisan multidisciplinary research institute established in 2003 to focus on cultivating an informed dialogue and conducting groundbreaking research on the most important national security, legal, and strategic issues of the post-9/11 era. Assigned to the Center's recently launched project on oversight of intelligence agencies, work included research, drafting and redaction of an edited volume published by the Center that analyzes institutions of intelligence oversight from a comparative perspective.

ARTICLED CLERK, MINISTRY OF FOREIGN AFFAIRS' LEGAL ADVISER'S Office, Jerusalem, Israel 2013-2014

Assigned to the International Law Department, work included counseling Israel's embassies and consulates abroad (in particular Israel's missions to the Hague, Geneva and the U.N. Headquarters), participation in international negotiations and government ministerial meetings, and assisting in diplomatic and legal dialogues as well as in Parliamentary committee sessions. In addition I was responsible for researching and producing legal briefs and diplomatic notes which directly helped shape Israel's policies in an array of legal fields including, but not limited to, human rights law, law of the sea, refugee law, international criminal law, international humanitarian law, and the Israeli-Palestinian peace negotiations.

TEACHING ASSISTANT TO PROF. DAVID KRETZMER, Jerusalem and Sderot, Israel 2013-2014

Developed course materials, led lectures, and graded papers and exams for "Terrorism, Counter-Terrorism, and Human Rights", an English taught graduate course at Hebrew University's Law Faculty; as well as for "Public International Law", "Human Rights in International Law" and "The Laws of Armed Conflict", undergraduate courses taught at Sapir Academic College's Law Faculty. All courses were coordinated and supervised by Prof. David Kretzmer, former expert member of the U.N. Human Rights Committee.

RESEARCH ASSISTANT, THE PUBLIC COMMISSION TO EXAMINE THE MARITIME INCIDENT OF 31 MAY 2010 CHAIRED BY JUSTICE (RET.) JACOB TURKEL, Jerusalem, Israel 2011-2013

Researched, drafted, and redacted the Turkel Commission's second report on Israel's investigatory policies into international humanitarian law violations. Work included: summarizing legal materials, independent review of testimonies, writing of initial drafts, and legal analysis of particular public international law questions of interest to the committee.

INTERN, UNITED NATIONS INTERNATIONAL CRIMINAL TRIBUNAL FOR THE FORMER YUGOSLAVIA, OFFICE OF THE PROSECUTOR (UN-ICTY OTP), Den Haag, Netherlands 2012

Assigned to the ongoing Ratko Mladić trial team; gained a unique hands-on experience on the daily works of a criminal prosecution in an international setting. Work included: witness preparation, drafting 92bis and 92ter motions, compiling exhibits lists and disclosure logs, reviewing witness testimonies, and mentoring new interns. As part of my work was called to administer, search, update, and analyze evidence using UN-ICTY OTP's electronic databases, including: eCourt, CaseMap, Zyfind, JigSaw, EDS, and MIF.

INSTRUCTOR, "LEGAL WRITING AND RESEARCH" COURSE, Jerusalem, Israel 2011-2012

Led and coordinated an introductory course into legal analysis and critical reasoning for first-year students at Hebrew University's Law Faculty. The course involved guiding students through the various stages of legal research and writing their first in-depth thesis papers.

MILITARY SERVICE

SERGEANT MAJOR (RES.), ISRAELI DEFENSE FORCE'S INTELLIGENCE BRANCH, Givaatayim, Israel 2005-2008

Serving for one of the IDF's leading units for intelligence processing and research, specializing in intelligence analysis and project management for ongoing combat and operational purposes. Work involved writing intelligence briefings, and developing basic and advanced training sessions for units' soldiers. Work required teamwork and efficiency under pressure and in short time constraints.
