

ILYA LOZOVSKY

“Investigative Journalism & Democracy”

From the Panama Papers to the Azerbaijani and Russian Laundromats, the Organized Crime and Corruption Reporting Project (OCCRP) has produced groundbreaking investigative reporting on the hidden financial flows that form large parts of the world financial system. Ilya Lozovsky, the organization's managing editor, will discuss how such investigations work from the inside and what role they play in defending and strengthening the democratic world. Depending on interest, he can also talk about (investigative) journalism as a career path in a time when the industry is experiencing serious challenges.

Managing editor of the Organized Crime and Corruption
Reporting Project
Sarajevo, Bosnia and Herzegovina

2006 Tufts graduate in International Relations

Fletcher School of Law and Diplomacy alumnus with Concentration in governance and political development with a focus on the former Soviet Union in 2012

FRIDAY, SEPT. 20
3 PM, LAMINAN
LOUNGE

The event is sponsored by the Department of International Literary and Cultural Studies & the Russian Fund

Refreshments will be served