

Wilfried
Martens Centre
for European Studies

Thinking Europe, our Common House
#StaySafeStayInformed

EVENT CO-ORGANISED WITH

THE FLETCHER SCHOOL
OF LAW AND DIPLOMACY

THE CONSTANTINE G. KARAMANLIS CHAIR
IN HELLENIC AND EUROPEAN STUDIES

Implications of the 2020 U.S. Presidential Election for the EU

5 November, 2020
16:30-17:30 CET

Online Event

On 3 November, Americans will again choose the person who they want to lead the country as President of the United States. In this election, the choice is between the incumbent republican candidate Donald J. Trump, and Joe Biden, the democratic candidate and former U.S. Vice-President under Barack Obama. The choice is between two very different candidates with different visions for America's future and leadership on the world stage.

This event will discuss the election outcome's implications for the EU and transatlantic relations more broadly. It will focus on questions such as (1) What does the outcome of the election mean for the EU? (2) How is U.S. policy towards the EU likely to change or develop during the next four years? And (3) What themes should be at the top of the transatlantic agenda after the winner of the election is sworn into office in January 2021?

PROGRAMME

16:30

Discussants:

Jana Puglierin, Head, European Council on Foreign Relations (ECFR) Berlin

Constantine Arvanitopoulos, Professor of International Politics at Karamanlis, Chair in Hellenic and European Studies, Fletcher School of Law and Diplomacy at Tufts University, USA and Senior Research Associate, Martens Centre

Max Bergmann, Senior Fellow, Center for American Progress

Moderated by:

Roland Freudenstein, Policy Director, Martens Centre

17:30

End of discussion

*The Conference receives financial support from the European Parliament.
Sole liability rests with the organiser, the European Parliament is not responsible for the activity.*