Dear Mr. President

In 1999, 8-year-old Christina and her TLC tutor read Arthur Meets the President by Marc Brown. Today, she would be 26 or 27, yet her advice to the President of the United States is no less apt.

Dear Mr. President, Apr. 3, 1999

I know how to make Americal better. We should help poor people and give them some money. So they can buy some food. We should be mean to people or steal from other people.

Don't make fun of people and don't hurt people's feeling. If people are mean to other people then they have to give away something they really like.

Thankyou for reading my letter.

Loves

Christina
